DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed November 12, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive for the reasons set forth below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-8, 11, 14-15, 17-28 remain rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Liddell et al. in view Neubeck.

Applicants argue that the disclosure of Neubeck teaches only purified or concentrated enzymes may be spray dried and that there is no suggestion to spray dry a fermentation broth "after culture of a microorganism." However, it is noted that Applicants' claims are not so limited. The scope of the term "fermentation broth starting material comprising an enzyme and a biomass" includes both the fermentation broth immediately after culture as well as having been treated with several steps for removal of certain components of the broth. Applicants' disclosure at page 12 notes that the "starting material is a fermentation broth or a fermentation broth, which have been subjected to one or more processing steps, such as fermentation filtrate or an enzyme concentrate as defined, supra." Therefore, the term encompasses a biomass and a concentrated enzyme. It is clear that both these components may be successfully spray-dried per the disclosure of both Liddell et al. and Neubeck. Neubeck does teach a process for spray-drying enzymes, specifically the fermentation broth after culture of a microorganism. Neubeck teaches to include incipients and to prepare the broth in a manner to remove substances which are the major cause of discoloration, hygroscopicity, odor, gumming, caking, etc. that would lead to deterioration of the product. These steps appear to be within the steps disclosed by Applicants, including desludging.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to leave the cells, i.e. biomass, in the fermentation broth prior to spray drying in order to obtain the benefit of the cells as taught by Liddell et al. Manipulations of the broth and the biomass as claimed, such as desludging, inclusion of excipients, and the type of spray drying apparatus, absent objective evidence to the contrary, are deemed well within the skill of the practitioner.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
